

A Grave Mistake.
Silver State.

The Ohio Republican Committee sent a note to Lot M. Morrill of Maine, formerly U. S. Senator from that State, stating that the situation in Ohio is a critical one, and the party is in trouble on account of the attacks on Mr. Blaine, and that as Mr. Morrill is well known as a pure and upright Statesman, and from Blaine's own State, he could refute the charge as no one else could, and it was therefore hoped that he would visit Ohio in this emergency and make as many speeches as possible.

As Senator Morrill has been dead for eighteen months past, the letter was delivered to Mrs. Morrill, who says she was indignant and amazed that any Republican should be ignorant of her husband's death, and her reply to the Committee at Columbus, Ohio, is not calculated to improve the situation materially. She says that her husband was opposed to Blaine, and if alive he would not speak nor vote for Mr. Blaine, as he knew him to be a corrupt politician. "My husband," continued Mrs. Morrill, "was visited by Mr. Blaine at the beginning of the Congressional investigation into the Little Rock Railroad bonds. Mr. Blaine, as he did to Mulligan, importuned my husband with tears and entreaties to use his influence to save him. When my husband resigned to go into the Cabinet it was generally understood, and my husband so understood, that Governor Chamberlain would be appointed to fill the vacancy. Instead, and to the surprise of every one, Governor Connor appointed Mr. Blaine, then a representative in Congress and under charges in that body, to the vacancy." Gov. Connor has had his reward. He is now Pension agent for the State of Maine, the best office in the State next to the Collectorship.

How Politics Pay.
Bedrock Democrat.

Postmaster-General Gresham is reported to have discovered three men now employed in the Chicago Post-office to whom the Government has been paying a salary of $7,500 a year who have no duties to perform. The department's special agents have declared the offices sinecures. The men who have held these places are well known politicians who have been allowed a salary they made no pretence of earning. How the postmaster happened to drop on the delinquents at the present time, in the midst of a campaign, is not explained. The offices are held by Republicans friendly to the Republican ticket, who are doing as much to earn their salaries as they ever did. While the postmaster-general will be commended for his desire to prune the department of idlers, a good many people will wonder how he happened to make the discovery that they were doing nothing to earn their salaries in the interim between the Republican National Convention and the day of election. If the President had not declared over and again that he hoped to see Blaine elected there might be a suspicion that these offices were to be abolished because the persons holding them were the devoted adherents of Blaine and Logan. But we know that both the President and the postmaster-general are sincerely interested in the success of the Republican ticket, because they have said so.

Anti-Mormon residents of Lewis county, Tenn, have posted notices, warning all Mormons to leave within thirty days. Several of the latter day saints have taken alarm and departed for other regions.

The great hotel in the Yellowstone National Park is a financial failure.

The railroad has caused quite a stir at La Grande, and a number of new buildings have already been erected and several are in course of construction in the vicinity of the depot. The new town, as it is termed, might become a competitor to the old town were it not located on a low flat, while the old town is situated on an elevation and sheltered from the winds which are common to Union county. The business and residence part of the place will remain where it now is and, in time, will make quite a place. —[Standard.]
